

Spring 2016

To Whom It May Concern:

As the Dean of Curriculum and Instruction at Skipstone Academy, let me say that our first year's experience with the My Access product has been exemplary. The 2015-2016 instructional year was the first time this institution had used any formal writing program as a part of our Language Arts Curriculum. In fact, many of our students were lagging behind in their understanding and implementation of the writing process.

We launched the use of the product in grades 4-12. Our teachers received wonderful training from the organization and we highly recommend it in order to maximize your full benefit of the program. The many intellimetric writing topics offer a variety of genres and levels of writing that students can use to explore their responses on many interesting topics. I am particularly fond of the ability of an instructor to identify weaknesses while guiding students through the important traits of writing. Teachers can create mini-lessons that address any need identified by the program. This nuance of the program allows the teacher to differentiate from topic to topic.

A problem among educators is that of getting students to revise. The online feature makes revisions easy. To date our students have made more than 11,000 revisions on their writing. This is Win-Win for the student and the teacher alike.

Finding ways for students to improve,
